The Gong of Time

Time says hush.
By the gong of time you live.
Listen and you hear time saying you were silent long before you came to life and you will again be silent long after you leave it, why not be a little silent now?
Hush yourself, noisy little man.

Time hushes all.
The gong of time rang for you to come out of a hush and you were born.
The gong of time will ring for you to go back to the same hush you came from.
Winners and losers, the weak and the strong, those who say little and try to say it well, and those who babble and prattle their lives away,
Time hushes all.

The Boy That Was Killed—
Halloween is scary. Dean and spooky and ghosts come out and they scare people and best of everything people get candy. And one Halloween a boy was killed and it was a ghost that killed him.

Dean Kasperzak

Spangles of shining sea foam ear and quake beneath the moon And dark, choppy hills of water well and rise with uniform cries nd the wailing lies of lonely Poseidon nto truth or Devil's plight.

Mike Ward 1967

the sound
the windy sound no echoes bring puffs about the steel towers in gleaming sun,
in sequential rains,
huddles in streetside splotches, such searing pains
the sound
the voices, that a prophet bleat, drip his life down subway halls rack and break cracked billiard balls stop for coffeecake on midtown, crosstown, uptown trains newssheets squat in every seat
the sound of seeping liver oil and opened tongues to lap the fright, to wet the sight to taste the might of pounding echoes.
the people called the masses, here, thighs beat roundabout and came to hear the flesh they's swabbed and laughed about, bent over, tense, honed . . .
with racks of echoes, laughing clear as the transients know, that fool and whore ruptured so, loved and swore.
the sound
someone left the cross and padded off into shanty towns and wrought iron gates, sipped more mash and scuttled fate, and the echoes that never were that all surely bled, raped and died for the sound
the windy sound no echoes bring scrawled in tenament cracks and other things, slept beneath white winter's pinafore.

Harlan Jacobson 1967

The genius and the imbecile
As each so deftly sauntered through
The maze of fumes, departures, times
Red busy humans idle planes
Each stopped and uttered voiceless sound
Of hello—Whyfore art thou here?
A fluent discourse launched upon
Said genius, "Embarkation hour Approaches" Onward, imbecile
Retreated both a separate way.

Gail Steketee 1967

Once upon a time long ago, there was a camel named Castels who loved to sing. He was a very nice camel.

One day, while he was walking in the woods, he saw a Christmas tree being cut down by some woodsmen.

He didn't like that, so he had a pity party all by himself. While he was having it he sang a song:

"Please dear God, help this poor old Christmas tree."

But I guess God didn't help. Castels got so burned up that he grabbed the Christmas tree, rushed through the woods, and ran into a cave. In the cave he sang the same song he sang before. This time God did help. By the time Castels counted to three, the tree was well.

They danced and had a party. Suddenly, they heard a sound. It was a bear. They ran for their lives. They got out all right, and boy did they thank God for that!

After a little while they got married and lived happy ever after.

What Are People For?

People are for company. If we didn't have people it would be a very lonesome world. If we didn't have people it would be like not having books. The people make a better world.

A dying leaf of brittle brown
Lets go its hold and tumbles down
And sadly skids along the ground
And settles with a mournful sound
Of someone once uniquely crowned
With all of nature's gold and brown . . .
Of someone who has nearly drowned
Within a bitter world abound
With sneers and curses too profound . . .
Alas! it skids along the ground
And trampled dies—without a sound.

Richard H. Eyster 1968

An Italian Sonnet

Arise, O sons of Italy, arise!
Awake, and sense the glory of the hour!
Bring forth your weapons, patriots, surprise
The fiend, and beat him back and make him cower.
The one who would fair Sicily rebuke,
Or he who would your native land disgrace,
Who tries the pride of Genoa to spook,
Be swift to throw a Pizza in his face!

Now go, and see the power of Rome enhanced
And see Italian glory rule the world
And when the vic'try dance you all have danced
A Laurel wreath around your head you have curled.
So if the Anglo-saxons you despise,
Arise, O sons of Italy, arise!

T. H. Brooks 1967

Shack shrieks of cold
Dead gray ashes in fireplace
Huddled mass of tattered bodies Helpless.

HALLOWEEN

Once on a gloomy Halloween night a garcon called Jon came to the corner of le rue where his mere told him not to go past. Well he did it. Soon, behind a l'arbre he heard a bruit! Was it a renard? Well he ran anyway. Something started to trip him! Out dropped deux pieces of candy. He didn't care. Could it be a serpent?
Now he heard a bruit! !
It was his pere.
He learned his lesson.

Clouds

Clouds are mighty wonderous things,
Of many shapes, of many sizes.
I think clouds are very free floating
Through the sky,
And so free they quickly go,
Quietly as they came.
Clouds appear and disappear,
Softly, silently, through the day.
I think clouds look just like people,
places, animals,
Drifting through the sky.

While his moon laughs quietly all alone.

it is in fact a truth that i do lie upon my face

Jamie Horwitz 1968

Written in ink, in German, in a hopelessly sincere handwriting, were the words "Dear God, life is hell." . . . "Fathers and teachers, I ponder 'What is hell?' I maintain that it is the suffering of being unable to love." Dostoevsky.

J. D. Salinger

"Equality" I spoke the word as if a vow
but I was young then
